

BATTERED BY THE ALLIED ARMIES GERMANS BEGIN RETREAT TOWARD THE VESLE; EFFORTS TO CHECK FOCH OF NO AVAIL

COMPANY D BOY, BROTHER OF CONNELLVILLE WOMAN, KILLS 18 GERMANS IN MARNE BATTLE

Alfred W. Davis is Hero of Fight Near Sergy.

BULLET HITS HIS GUN

Glances and Kills Officer With Whom He's Talking.

THEN DAVIS GETS BUSY

John L. Robinson, Lieutenant in Company D, is Mentioned in Dispatches for Gallantry; Thrilling Incidents About Boys in Big Battle Related.

Information received in Uniontown, his home, credits a member of Company D, Alfred W. Davis, better known by the name of "Gent," and a brother of Mrs. J. J. Smith of 412 East Washington avenue, Connellsville, with killing 18 Germans in an action near Chateau-Thierry in the battle of the Marne. Corporal Davis, it is stated, was standing beside an American officer during the encounter when a sniper's bullet struck Davis' rifle and glanced killing the officer. Creeping forward among rocks, it is said, Davis concealed himself and accounted for the Hun, one by one.

While Davis is a Uniontown boy and was born and reared there he is well known in Connellsville. He served with Company D on the Mexican border and then was discharged from the service. When war broke out with Germany the fever attacked him and he re-enlisted, being reinstated in his old place as corporal. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Davis of Uniontown and a brother of Miss Rosetta Davis of that city.

Gallantry on the part of others of the 119th is mentioned by Raymond G. Carroll, special correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch and the Philadelphia Ledger on the battle front. Among the names in his dispatch is that of Lieutenant John L. Robinson of Company D.

The dispatch leaves no doubt that the Connellsville boys are and have been in the battle though as yet there have come no reports of casualties.

The dispatch story bearing on the fighting in which the 119th participated follows: Our boys east of Sergy upon a width of more than half a mile again buried forward Tuesday afternoon and night to an equal depth, passing the towns of Roncheres, and on Wednesday afternoon other American units passed another town and were last seen by your correspondent entering a wood east of Sergy under the leadership of two captains from Detroit, Milburn Hawkes and John McCabe, who have already been commended by their commander for bravery.

This is only a fragment of two days' operations upon the Franco-American front in the district north of Chateau-Thierry, from which the Germans are being slowly, but surely ejected, but I offer a detailed account of this minor action because a French high officer informed me it was perfect in execution and shows the next way the Americans go about this work.

After laying patiently for three days in the fields upon short rations the word came that a fresh attack was set for Tuesday afternoon. At 10 minutes after 2 o'clock the French and American heavy artillery laid down a very destructive fire upon the German positions which lasted until 2:30, when the American infantry in three waves rose from their shallow trenches and began to advance, under the protection of a rolling barrage from the light artillery, which was lifted every two minutes and advanced 50 yards.

Beyond Roncheres is a patch of woods which the Germans held and which was our first objective. Our advancing line started from a point 400 yards east of Roncheres on a width of more than half a mile.

CUT OUT THE BOOZE, NOT THE WEEK-DAY CHURCH SERVICES

Is Father Lambing's Plan to Increase Production of Coal and Coke.

EXPERIENCE OF 39 YEARS

As Pastor Has Proven That Attendance at Week-Day Services by Catholics Is Less a Cause of Reduced Output Than Intemperance of Others.

The suggestion of the Fayette County Fuel Administration that the week-day services at the Catholic churches be eliminated, as a means toward increasing the production of coal and coke is not likely to be received with favor among the pastors of the congregations of this faith in the coke region who have had long experience in ministering to the spiritual needs of their people, the belief is unshaken that attendance at week-day church services is much less a cause for lack of industry among the coal and coke workers than is the habit of intemperance acquired by those who are less pious. This view of the matter is expressed by Rev. M. A. Lambing, pastor of St. John's Roman Catholic church of Scottsdale for upwards of forty years, who in a communication to The Courier, says:

That Catholics are more pious than their non-Catholic neighbors I most certainly believe nevertheless I am sure the County Fuel Administration has an exaggerated notion of the piety of coke region Catholics and I have 39 years experience as a pastor in one of the best (most pious) Catholic congregations of the region.

If the Fuel Administration wants to increase the production of fuel by eliminating loss of time on the part of miners and cokers, let it eliminate the beer and whisky wagon, the saloon and the drinking club throughout the county then it will tend to keep all not merely the pious Catholics, on the job.

"Why should such a tax be put on Catholic piety? For every bushel of coal which the Catholic keeps from being mined by his attending church on week days his intemperate (non-pious) neighbors keep tons from being mined through drink got from the wagon, the saloon and drinking club. I know better what I am talking about than does the County Fuel Administration, for I have conducted week day services in the coke region 95 per cent of the week days for the last 39 years. Let them send letters to the brewers, distillers, saloon keepers and drinking clubs, the district attorney, county detectives and other officers a part of whose duties are supposed to be to see that the law is observed.

"There is too little piety and entirely too much booze in the coke region to get out the maximum of coal. If piety were encouraged, people might come to understand that to do their very best for the country is a duty they owe to God as well as to their country and would be led to fulfill it. Leave the people all the piety they have and increase it, cut out the booze."

KILLED BY TRAIN

Western Maryland Laborer Run Down in H. & O. Yards.

Joe Tofani, 31 years old, of Altoona, was fatally injured last night about midnight when run down by a train in the Baltimore yards. He was hurriedly removed to the Cottage State hospital where he died this morning of his wounds. The body was taken charge of by Funeral Director J. J. Sims and prepared for burial.

Tofani was a foreigner and was a laborer engaged in work on the Western Maryland railroad improvements near Fayette.

H. E. MASON SUCCEEDS E. W. LYON AS MANAGER AT DAVIDSON WORKS

H. E. Mason yesterday took charge of the Davidson plant of the H. C. Frick Coke company succeeding E. W. Lyon who has resigned. The new superintendent had been in charge of a plant at Youngstown, near Percy. He also has Coalbrook under his charge. At one time he was superintendent of the Adelaide plant.

ENTIRE RIDGE BETWEEN THE OURCQ AND AISNE NOW IS IN POSSESSION OF THE ALLIES

Terrific Combats Rage Thursday and Thursday Night With the Enemy Steadily Giving Ground; Difficulties of Allies are Tremendous, but Nothing Stops Them.

PRISONERS CAPTURED IN MARNE COUNTER DRIVE ABOVE 34,000

By Associated Press.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, Aug. 2.—The battle on the front north of the Marne resolved itself during the night and this morning into at most a general retirement of the enemy north of the Ourcq with the Allies pursuing the Germans with the greatest zeal and success.

RESISTANCE TODAY SLIGHT.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE AISNE-MARNE FRONT—The whole American line moved forward today while the armies along the banks from Soissons to Rheims pressed hard against the sides of the German salient. Their gains were made almost without resistance. Hammered as they have been for days the Germans withdrew during the night, so that when the Americans, who were supported on their right and left by the French, started early this morning they did not encounter the usual machine gun fire.

Battering their path through strong German defenses, Allied troops have made substantial gains on either side of Fere-en-Tardenois. Fierce fighting continues, with the enemy being forced back steadily.

Taking advantage of the two salients driven into the German lines General Foch launched heavy attacks, and their results have proved the value of the positions. West of Fere the salient has been widened, while east and southeast the Germans in the small pockets between Sergy and Romagny are in a fair way to being cut off completely.

Combats of the greatest intensity marked the Allied forward movement Thursday and Thursday evening. The Germans used every natural advantage to the full and had protected their positions with plenty of barbed wire and hundreds of machine guns.

Seven hundred prisoners were captured by the French, British and Americans, bringing the total for the second Marne battle to over 34,000. Between July 15 and July 30, 33,400 Germans were captured by the Allies besides many guns, great numbers of machine guns and large quantities of materials of all kinds.

Surging forward British and French troops captured Cramoisselle and Cramaille, important heights, and approaching the hills around the headwaters of the Crise from their new position the French and British forces outflanked the Germans northward to Soissons.

FRENCH DRIVE AHEAD.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—On the battlefield north of the Marne the French troops during the night continued to press back the Germans farther toward the Vesle, says the official statement from the war office today.

ARISES AT MIDNIGHT TO BE ON HAND FOR OPENING OF MARKET

Then Indian Head Farmer is Compelled to Wait Two Hours Here; Many Buyers on Hand.

The city curb market, continued successful this morning, another big crowd of buyers being on the grounds. There were 19 farmers at the market this morning the largest number ever yet on hand at one time and heavy sales were made in fresh produce. Some of the farmers were on hand two hours previous to the opening of the market this morning.

One man drove in from back of Indian Head with a load, selling out with the exception of a bushel of beans. Part of these were gone when he started home. In order to get to the market on the opening hour, this young farmer and his sister got up at 12 o'clock this morning, loaded their wagon and left home at 1 o'clock arriving here at 6 o'clock necessitating a two hour wait for the market to open. Some of the other drivers made by farmers who come to the market here are also long and require time.

At a meeting of the curb market committee held earlier in the week relative to the opening time of the market, the farmers on the committee were in favor of 8 o'clock the hour which had been previously set, instead of changing to 7:30 o'clock as some persons suggested. In view of the fact that the farmers had to come such distances with their goods, 8 o'clock was definitely agreed on as the opening hour.

It has also been decided that in case of rain the farmers will drive to the market as usual and be ready for business. Persons who wish to go to the market at the regular hour on rainy days will find the farmers there, and they will remain on the grounds until the afternoon if necessary should the rain continue that long.

IN LABOR BUREAU.

Miss Emma Hite Secured as Stenographer for New Office Here.

Miss Emma Hite has taken a position as stenographer and office assistant in the government labor bureau being opened in Connellsville. D. T. Hirliman who is in charge of the bureau has leased the room at 111 West Apple street formerly occupied by Miss Flora McFarland, who moved to the T. H. & Trust building. He is getting the place fitted up and looking after preliminary matters to the formal opening of the bureau.

ALLIES CAPTURE MOST IMPORTANT POSITIONS.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Yesterday's Franco-British attack on the westerly side of the Marne penetrated a maximum depth of three miles, according to news received today. It resulted in the capture of the entire ridge which formed the watershed between the Ourcq and the Aisne, the allies indicate.

The French also captured the entire Neumiere woods on the line to the west of Goussancourt at about the center of the salient. The advance by the Allies along the western side of the salient is described as extremely important—possibly the most important thing the Allies have accomplished since the Germans retired from the Marne.

The importance of the victory, it is explained, lies in the fact that the new Allied positions command the whole area to the northward and takes in flank and rear of the entire western gates through which the Germans have been retreating. This area is a nest of German reserves and field artillery.

Goussancourt itself has been taken by the French, the allies add. The capture of the important ground on the heights to the westerly side of the line also means that the Germans will not be able to retire in an ordinarily leisurely way and that they probably will have to go beyond the river Vesle in their retreat.

The situation is considered as extraordinarily good, being described in the advices as the

AUTOMOBILE OWNERS ASKED TO DONATE OLD TIRES TO RED CROSS

Next Thursday and Friday The Days and Brimstone Corner the Place to Receive the Offerings.

The suggestion made by V. J. Clark some weeks ago that automobile owners could assist materially in swelling the funds of the Red Cross by donating their worn-out tires for that purpose has taken form.

T. J. Hooper chairman of the Connellsville branch has asked car owners to make their tire and inner tube donation on next Thursday and Friday leaving them at a part of Brimstone corner to be designated later. It is estimated that there are between 2,500 and 3,000 automobile owners in this community and that each has one or more old tires or tubes they will be glad to give to so worthy a cause.

As the Red Cross Mr. Hooper stated this morning that if there is a general response to the request the accumulation of scrap material will add a very considerable and much needed sum to the Red Cross funds.

Permission to use the street for two days for this purpose has been given by Mayor Duggan. The collection of the cast off tires will be in charge of Ira Moon and Chairman Hooper. Mr. Moon recently observed the working of a similar plan in Savannah Ga., and he is of the opinion that Connellsville can do all that the southern city did in this direction. Chairman Hooper is confident that automobile owners will show themselves to be just as much interested in making the plan a success as were those of Savannah.

The Mount Braddock baseball team is proving its patriotism and money-raising abilities at one and the same time. As the result of a game recently played for the benefit of the Red Cross the Mount Braddock auxiliary has turned over $150 to Chairman T. J. Hooper. The ball club cheerfully lend its service to boosting the auxiliary and the auxiliary just as cheerfully turns over all the proceeds to the Connellsville branch.

The activity and interest of this auxiliary is shown by the fact that the sum of $332.37 was raised during the month of July.

Work Being Delayed.
Because of delays in construction of the railroad from Millsboro to Waynesburg bridge work and difficulties in securing material it is not likely that the mine development of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company at Nemacolin, Greene county, will be producing coal for a year.

ELECTRIC SIGNAL SYSTEM COSTING $400,000 GOING INTO SERVICE ON B. & O.

SEVEN MEN CALLED BY DISTRICT 2 TO LEAVE ON TUESDAY

Men Will Report at Armory Monday Afternoon at 4 O'clock for Roll Call.

TRAIN GOES AT 9.50 A. M.

Local Board for District No. 2 has issued a call for seven men to appear at the armory Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock for roll call. The men are to be entrained Tuesday morning at 9:50 o'clock for Camp Wadsworth S. C. The special train will leave here over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. At the same time 15 men will report on a call from Local Board No. 5, the names of the draftees in that district having been announced yesterday.

The men who live out of the city will be quartered here for the night and others who can reach their homes easily will be allowed to spend the night there.

Negro draftees from both districts will report at the armory this afternoon at 4 o'clock for the roll call preparatory to entrainment tomorrow morning at 9:35 o'clock for Camp Custer Battle Creek Mich. The negro selectives will hold a celebration tonight in the Rocky Mount Baptist church.

Both local boards have received notice that men have been called for entrainment to Lafayette college at Easton Pa. for training as automobile mechanics blacksmiths locomotive engineers and machinists. The men will leave on August 15 for the training school.

A call has also been received for men to go to Syracuse N. Y. on August 5 for training as port guards and firemen. The call is for limited service men only.

The seven men called by Board No. 2 to report Monday afternoon are Dominick Cafferty Scottdale; Germano Pegiesz Connellsville; John Latsko Stauffer; Celestino Gontero Scottdale; Frank H. Stauffer Pennsville; Charles F. King Scottdale; James L. Fitts South Connellsville.

AD MAKES RECORDS

Display Space in The Courier Brings Wonderful Results.

The results of the first advertisement of the Woolworth Company run in the columns of The Courier giving Bargain Day prices brought wonderful results and set a record for sales in the stores of that company.

In 45 minutes yesterday morning, the entire stock of 1,000 cakes of washing soap 1,000 cans of condensed milk 10 cases of cereals and 10 cases of raisins were sold out. This morning an even better record was set when the stock of 1,000 cakes of floating soap soap was sold out in 10 minutes. Bargain Day in Connellsville this year is considered a bigger success than ever before.

Edward F. Connolly Dunbar R. D. No. 1 has been added to the list of District No. 5 registrants who will go to Camp Wadsworth, Sparrowsburg S. C. on Tuesday morning.

U. S. AND JAPAN TO GIVE AID AT ONCE TO CZECHO-SLAVS

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Japan has found acceptable the American proposal which primarily looks to the aid of the Czechoslovaks now operating in Siberia and after exchanges between Tokio and Washington which have cleared up all doubtful points and removed any possibility of future misunderstanding, a complete agreement has been reached. The plan of operation will be put into execution at once.

Special Dynamo at West Penn Plant Furnishes Power.

WORK GOES ON RAPIDLY

West Penn to Supply Current as Far as Rockwood.

PLANT AT THAT PLACE

Remainder of "Jude" will Come From Cumberland End; System Now Working on Various Parts of Line, Including Connellsville to Greene.

The automatic electric block signal system being installed on the Connellsville division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad is being put into service as rapidly as sections are being completed. A big force is at work between here and Cumberland getting the system installed, and as soon as one section is finished it is put into operation and work started on building another. The installation of the system will cost approximately $400,000.

The electric signals on this division instead of being operated by power from dry batteries placed in a cell in the ground will be controlled by direct current supplied by power companies. The West Penn company here will supply power for a certain distance when Rockwood will come in and finally Cumberland will complete the system between here and that place. The West Penn Power Company here will have a separate generator for the purpose of furnishing power to the railroad.

The signals at present are in use between Cumberland and Mount Savage Junction and having just recently been completed. The block between the station at this place and Greene Junction is also completed, having been put in operation two or three weeks ago.

The distance between this place and Cumberland is 82 1-2 miles and a large number of the electric signals are required to cover that distance. Just the exact number to be placed could not be learned here this morning. Previous to the installation of the electric automatic system, telegraph towers were used.

MELTING POT HERE

Movement on to Collect Old Gold, Silver, Etc. for Y. M. C. A.

A melting pot for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. war fund will be established in Connellsville. Recipients for collecting old gold and silver were placed today at Keagy's drug store, the Wright-Metzler store and the Freeman's hall and will be ready for use tomorrow morning.

On Tuesday Wednesday and Thursday of next week paper will be collected. A house to house canvass will be made to gather old newspapers and magazines, which will be sold, the proceeds to be for the Y. M. C. A.

Those having donations are asked to bale their papers so as they will be ready when called for. By doing this it will make the work easier and speedier for those in charge. If every person does their bit towards making the melting pot a success quite a large sum will be realized for the Y which affords our boys so many comforts a place to read and write, and in the winter a big fire to gather around. The Y is their home. Those who will donate trunks for two or three hours for collecting the papers and to lessen the expense are asked to call Miss Catherine N. Foley on the Bell phone No. 456. The melting pot will be open for a time and all are urged to give all their old gold and silver. Those having scraps of iron are requested to notify any one of the committee, which is composed of the following persons:

R. A. Neville chairman, Miss Catherine N. Foley secretary, Mrs. E. T. Norton, Mrs. J. B. Hogg, Mrs. H. P. Snyder, Mrs. W. F. Brooks, Mrs. Morris Smith, Mrs. M. H. Broughton, Mrs. W. L. Wright, Miss Rose Soisson and Miss Gertrude Reid.

Ringer Asks Divorce.
Clarence S. Ringer of Connellsville has started a divorce action in Uniontown against Isabelle Ringer, alleging cruel treatment. They were married here last January 25.

At the Hospital.
Samuel Francis 40 years old of Normalville was admitted to the Cottage State hospital last night for treatment of a fractured leg received in an automobile accident.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mrs. M. H. Broughton, Mrs. C. E. Wilson and Dr. Katherine Wakefield attended a meeting of the Women's Committee of the Council of the National Defense held yesterday afternoon in the Parish House, Uniontown, to discuss plans for a campaign for nurses. Mrs. Frank Crow of Uniontown, who is in charge of this work, will be assisted by Mrs. Stewart Marshall. Each voting precinct of the county will be a district which will again be divided into sections with local representatives as captains. Judging from plans made by the women in charge Fayette county will not fail to provide its quota of student and registered nurses for duty in Europe.

The regular meeting of the V. V. club will be held tonight at the home of Misses Leona and Nell Showman in North Prospect street. Miss Ella Herwick, president, requests all members expecting to go camping, to be present at the meeting.

The O. N. T. Fancywork club was delightfully entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Higgins at her home in Park street. It was the last meeting of the club season and was attended by 11 members and one guest. Fancywork and knitting were the amusements. A dainty luncheon was served.

Miss Anna Kenner and Miss Jennie Landefeld delightfully entertained a number of their friends at a lawn party at the home of Mrs. Charles Kenner at South Connelville. The evening was enjoyably spent at various games and music. At a late hour ice cream, cake and fruit were served. Out of town guests were from Uniontown, Scottsdale and Owensville.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Nan Trimbath of Uniontown and David Sinner of Allida, solemnized Thursday, July 25, at Washington, Pa. Following a motor trip of several days the young couple returned home. The bridegroom expects to be called into the service soon.

George Bittner, who left recently for Camp Forest, Lyle, Ga., was honored guest at a dinner given by his aunt, Mrs. W. E. Bittner, at her home in Rockwood. Mrs. Carrie Bittner and Harry J. Johnston of this city were among the out of town guests.

The marriage of Miss Harilla M. Ronesburg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Madison Ronesburg of Garrett, and Rev. Melvin Bittner, pastor of the United Brethren church at Millintown, was solemnized Sunday morning at the parsonage of the Rockwood United Brethren church. Rev. C. D. Knapp officiated.

The regular meeting of the Business Women's Christian association was held last evening in Odd Fellows' Temple. Supper was served previous to the Bible lessons.

Miss Ruth Bailey and Roy Deal, both of Smithfield, were married Monday in Pittsburgh by Rev. Letner. The bride was employed by the Tri-State Telephone company at Smithfield while the bridegroom is in the service of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad company. Following a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will return to Smithfield to reside.

Church Day was observed yesterday at the First Methodist Episcopal church by the Ladies' Aid society and the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary societies. Each society held separate meetings and from 12 to 1 o'clock luncheon was served to a large number of persons.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid and Missionary society of the United Presbyterian church was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. A. McKesson in Francis avenue.

VILLE-EN-TARDENOIS

ENTIRELY ENCIRCLED ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, August 2.—The important town of Ville-en-Tardenois, on the eastern side of the Marne salient, has been encircled by the Allied forces. The French are continuing to advance and have taken additional towns and villages at various parts of the front between Soissons and Rheims. The enemy is resisting desperately and losing in prisoners.

GAINS OF YESTERDAY

VALUABLE TO POCH. PARIS, August 2.—The ground won yesterday north of the Ourcq has considerable value. It is a long spur about 800 feet high, forming the watershed between the Crise and the Ourcq, and is a valuable observation point. From it the Germans prevented the Allies from seeing the Crise while they overlooked the ground won from them on the Ourcq.

As a consequence they can now maneuver safely in the Ourcq region. In addition they have a view behind the Hattinches plateau where the enemy still clings along the Soissons-Chateau Thierry road and that strong position, difficult of attack frontally, can now be learned from the north through Ville Nanteuil and from the south by way of Hill 205.

WASHINGTON IN GREAT

GLIE OVER NEW GAINS. WASHINGTON, August 2.—The German army in the Soissons-Rheims salient today appeared again to be in retreat, the second withdrawal ordered by the German high command within a week. Pushed back by the Allied advance to the banks of the Ourcq a few days ago the German forces in the opinion of officials here, were withdrawing today to the Vesle.

Deep satisfaction was expressed today in the part played by the American forces in compelling the withdrawal of the enemy. Fighting desperately the Americans on Tuesday drove forward in the region north of Serger, thereby creating a dent in the enemy line which, coupled with the smashing tactics on the German flank by the French and British, made the Ourcq line untenable.

ARREST OF GORKY ORDERED.

HIS PAPER SUPPRESSED. LONDON, Aug. 2.—The arrest of Maxim Gorky, the Russian author and revolutionary, has been ordered by an investigating commission of the Soviet government, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen. The Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Express reports that Gorky's paper has been suppressed permanently.

CONNELLSVILLE RED CROSS WOMEN MEET MOUNTAIN AUXILIARY

Twelve Workers From Here Encourage Continuation of Work; Given Chicken Dinner.

Twelve ladies representing the Conneltsville branch of the American Red Cross, accompanied by J. Fred Kurtz, chairman of the Fayette County chapter, and D. W. Hickey, motorist to Belle Grove, near Ohioville, yesterday afternoon, and last night met with a large number of the members of the Belle Grove auxiliary at the home of Mrs. E. C. Marsh, chairman. Short addresses were made by Mrs. John L. Gans, Mrs. Louise Reynolds, Miss Harriet Clark, Mrs. W. O. Schooner and a longer talk on general Red Cross activities by Mrs. George W. Buckner. Samples of the work done in the surgical dressing, hospital garments, and knitting departments were displayed by the Conneltsville women, and a plea made to have the excellent work this auxiliary has been doing continued and increased.

The sum of $28 was turned over to the Conneltsville branch by the Belle Grove auxiliary, having been realized from a lawn fete held by it a few days ago. At 7 o'clock Mrs. Marsh and other members of the auxiliary served the Conneltsville visitors with a fried chicken supper of surpassing excellence.

The members of the party other than the speakers mentioned included Mrs. J. French Kerr, Miss Clara Fritchard, Mrs. Frank W. Wright, Miss Naomi C. Rosenblum, Mrs. A. B. Hood, Mrs. Paul Dick and Miss Nettie Hood. The meeting continued until after 10 o'clock, the visitors returning to Conneltsville about midnight.

STRICT ORDERS ISSUED AGAINST ENLISTMENT OF COAL MINERS IN ARMY

Must Have Consent of Their Manager or Superintendent Before They Will Be Accepted as Recruits.

Further evidence of the determination of the War Department to prevent the recruiting of men for military service who are engaged in coal mining, is contained in an order issued to the officer in charge of the Pennsylvania recruiting district.

The order specifies that whenever any applicant presents himself for enlistment the recruiting officer will inquire all about his occupation. If he states he is a coal miner, or the officer has reason to believe he is a miner, the applicant will be required to present written permission from his company manager or superintendent to enlist. If the applicant left the employ of the company with the intention of enlisting, he will be rejected by the recruiting officer.

Recruiting officers are instructed to get in touch with superintendents or managers of the coal mines of their district and form some sort of a working agreement with such manager or superintendent to notify the recruiting station whenever a man leaves their employ. Officers are directed to be on the lookout for such men and unless the coal company indicates their approval all such applicants will be rejected.

Jacksonville, Ill.—"I have a twenty-months old baby and keep house for my little family, but got into a weak, nervous, run-down condition, tired all the time and no ambition. My doctor told me to try Vinol and in a week, I felt like a new person. I am now strong again, look after my baby and do all my housework."—Mrs. G. H. Lamson.

The reason we recommend Vinol, is because it is a constitutional remedy, containing beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphates, the most successful tonics known. Laughrey Drug Co., Conneltsville; D. C. Eason, Dunbar and druggists everywhere.—Adv.

Snowy White Clothes Without Scrubbing

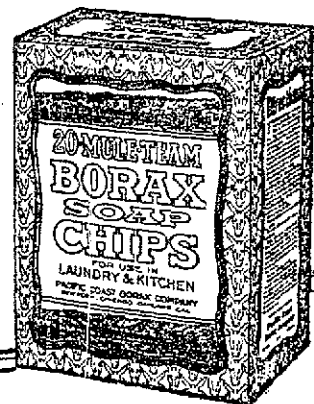

NO matter how big the wash or how soiled the linen, 20 Mule Team Borax Soap Chips will put your clothes on the line snowy white—with all the hard work of wash day left out. It's the Borax in that does it! It softens the water and loosens the dirt so that the pure soap can dissolve it away. Next washday use 20 Mule Team Borax Soap Chips this way:

Make a Soap Jelly by adding three table-spoonfuls of Chips to a quart of boiling water. Put enough of this solution into the wash-water to make a good suds and soak or boil clothes as usual. Will not shrink woollens or injure fine fabrics. An 8 oz. package of 20 Mule Team Borax Soap Chips equals 25c worth of ordinary laundry soap.

GREAT ACTIVITY IN WESTERN MARYLAND YARDS AT FAYETTE

Hundreds of Men at Work on Project to Facilitate Movement of Coal From West Virginia.

The Western Maryland yards at Fayette are the scene of great activity. Hundreds of men are engaged in completing this improvement. Train loads of slag arrive daily for filling up the valley for the extension of the six tracks which when completed will be a mile long. Concrete mixers are running constantly preparing the material for the bridges and the round house; carpenters are working on the timbers and plans for the buildings. Progress is being made in preparing the new route for the West Penn which will parallel the public road northward from the Greenhouse at Dunbar to the point where the old sawmill formerly stood, and from that point will cross by means of an overhead trestle the Western Maryland yards and the B. & O. and P. R. R. tracks at Fayette. A temporary wooden trestle will probably first be used until the massive steel structure ordered about two years ago but not yet delivered, arrives.

The round house will be large enough to contain engines for a half dozen crews, and it is probable houses will be built to accommodate the trainmen needed for the work of this yard and transfer.

The contractors find it difficult to secure bands and have room for laborers, carpenters and mechanics.

Notice to Druggists Price Advance

For over a year now we have succeeded in maintaining our old prices, principally by virtue of a big increase in sales, which reduced our overhead cost. For our fiscal year ending July 1, 1918, our sales amounted to over a million dollars—an increase of 58 per cent over the preceding year. We had hoped to bridge the war period without a change in prices on but we find that our economies do not keep pace with our rising costs. It is with sincere regret, therefore, that we are forced to announce an increase, effective August 1, which will make it necessary to raise VapoRub 2¢.

Vick's VapoRub

One Cereal That Needs No Sugar

Grape-Nuts, needs no sugar!

Unlike most cereal foods it contains its own natural sweetening, obtained through the famous Grape-Nuts process from the wheat and barley from which it is made.

This natural sweet is the starch of the grain changed into a healthful, life-giving sugar.

This change is brought about by the ferment, diastase, in barley malt, and by long baking. The result is a wonderful food, easy to digest, abundantly sweet in its own right, nourishing, economical.

BOARD TRAIN AT CONNELLSVILLE

Firemen's Fair for Red Cross Has Auspicious Opening; Surgical Dressing Class Hold War Picnic at Ore Mines; Other Newsy Events.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Aug. 2.—Saturday morning seven of the colored men furnished by this district for Camp Custer, Mich., will report at the Y. M. C. A. and will be taken to Connelville where they join others. The following men have been called: Bernard Jackson, Scottdale; James Walker, Scottdale; Walter Lockett, Scottdale; Frank Crider, Scottdale; William G. Hatt, Scottdale; Willie Elliott, Scottdale; Robert A. Franklin, Irwin, R. D. 4, and Clifford Logan, Mount Pleasant. Lunches will be prepared for these men by the Y. M. C. A. auxiliary and bounteous meals are prepared in these boxes.

Indoor Fair Opens.
The Firemen's Social club opened the doors of its annual indoor fair to the public last evening. The proceeds of the fair, which will be held Friday and Saturday nights also, will be given to the Red Cross. The country store is one of the features of the fair. No admission is charged to the building but there are plenty of booths where one may spend money to help this worthy cause. One booth has on display very good work done by the women of the Red Cross. Even larger crowds are expected this evening and Saturday evening it is thought will be a record breaker.

Home From Newport.
Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Byrne and daughter, Evelyn, and son, Regis, and Tod Byrne have returned from Newport where they visited John Byrne.

War Time Picnic.
The surgical dressings class of Emerson will hike to Ore Mines on Sunday where it will hold a picnic. The refreshments will be served on war basis. No wheat flour, sugar, butter nor lard will be used.

Ald Society Entertained.
Mrs. Frank Mitchell entertained the Ladies' Aid society of the Evangelical church at her Stauffer home yesterday afternoon.

No Word From Wright.
On Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. David Wright cabled to the American headquarters in France to see if there was any possible manner of learning the extent of the wounds of their son, Lieutenant John E. Wright. So far nothing has been heard in answer.

Swimming Classes.
Special classes in swimming are being formed for boys eight years old at the Y. M. C. A. These classes will commence at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Local Boys Make Good.
William Miller and Joseph Knowles, both well known local boys, are making excellent progress at the University of Pittsburgh where they are in training. They will complete their training August 10.

Card of Thanks.
We wish to thank our neighbors and friends who so kindly assisted us in the recent bereavement in the death of our daughter, Mrs. Lydia Galster, and for the beautiful flowers sent. Mr. and Mrs. John Gant.—Adv.

Prominent Scrantonian Tells How Master Medicine Gave Him Relief.

J. L. Viles, of 303 Linden Street, Scranton, past commander of Camp 8, Sons of Veterans, and captain of First company, Second regiment, S. V. O., Pennsylvania brigade, said recently: "I have suffered intensely for a long while from gastritis and indigestion. Whatever I ate seemed to produce bad after effects, such as gas on my stomach and nausea."

"In fact, I was always, or very generally, choked up from a gaseous, sour stomach, as if my food fermented continually. The trouble annoyed me no little and I became run down in every way. I lost strength and was nervous and depressed at times."

"I heard about this Tanlac, got some of it. I began improving after using only a few doses of Tanlac, and I have been improving constantly ever since. I put the medicine to what I called a supreme test the other evening when I attended a banquet, and felt no ill after effects from what I ate there."

"This Tanlac is not only straightening my digestion out, but seems to soothe and strengthen my stomach." Tanlac is now sold here by the Connelville Drug Company.

Tanlac can also be secured in Dunbar at D. C. Eason's Drug Store.—Adv.

DOCTOR URGED AN OPERATION

Instead I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Was Cured.

Baltimore, Md.—"Nearly four years I suffered from organic troubles, nervousness and head-aches and every month would have to stay in bed most of the time. Treatments would relieve me for a time but my doctor was always urging me to have an operation. My sister asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before consenting to an operation. I took five bottles of it and it has completely cured me and my work is a pleasure. I tell all my friends who have any trouble of this kind what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—NELLIE B. BRITTINGHAM, 609 Calverton Rd., Baltimore, Md.

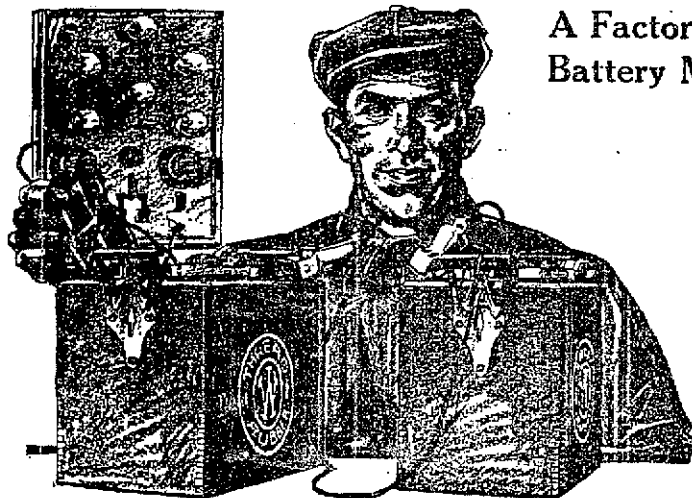

It is only natural for any woman to dread the thought of an operation. So many women have been restored to health by this famous remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after an operation has been advised that it will pay any woman who suffers from such ailments to consider trying it before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

Let an Expert Do It

Charging is not an especially complicated process, but it is an especially important one.

By proper charging, batteries are returned to their proper condition; by improper charging, their life is likely to be seriously shortened.

When your battery is charged by a Willard expert, the charging rate is carefully determined, and is slowed down by just the right amount as the process nears completion.

Ask us about the Still Better Willard. It is the only battery with the "Bone Dry" principle that is your absolute assurance of getting a battery as new as the day it left the factory.

ROBBING PETER TO PAY PAUL.

The efforts that are to be made to persuade miners who have left the industry before the present activity began to return to their former occupation, are too belated to promise any large measure of success. Those men have become settled in new surroundings and are in an atmosphere that is more surcharged with the war spirit than the mining industry. Under the circumstances their inclination will be to stay on their present jobs. The work in which they are engaged is several steps closer in its relations to the business of winning the war than mining coal, hence continuing in the work from the men's point of view, quite as necessary and equally patriotic as it would be to return to their earlier occupation. Accordingly appeals to their patriotism will be less likely to be effective than they would be if their present employment were in industries having only very remote relation to the war program.

Most of the men whom the proposed campaign seeks to reach have been engaged for two years or longer in the munition plants, steel mills and similar industries and have acquired such a degree of skill that they are making large earnings and probably less physical exertion than would be required in earning an equal amount in or about our mines. When the munition workers who were formerly miners made a change of occupation mining conditions were, justly different from those prevailing at this time. Car supply was so poor that steady work was the exception, not the rule. Even at the high rate of wages then paid, and since advanced several times, mine workers were unable to make average earnings that were in proportion to the steadily increasing costs of living. When the repeated promises of improvement in car supply failed of fulfillment time after time, it was to be expected that the mine workers would seek a steadier and more profitable form of employment. The munition, steel and other war supplies plants proved an attraction for men dissatisfied with the mining situation and many were drawn thither.

To induce them to return to the mine is the object of a campaign to be undertaken by the War Labor Administration and the Federal Employment Service as a part of the program of the priority distribution of workers.

Care is taken in making the announcement to state that nothing will be done that savors of drafting men to work in a particular industry. Instead, every worker will be left free to exercise his own choice of employment

after having been appealed to on patriotic grounds to return to coal mining.

Applied earlier this plan would have given much greater promise of success. So much stress has been placed upon the necessity for continuing the fullest operation of munition and similar plants, and employment therein has been designated as a highly commendable form of patriotism, that the workers will doubtless be found disposed to remain at the present jobs.

A few will be willing to return to mining just as every different labor re-crutling plan has resulted in bringing a certain measure of results, but on the whole the inauguration of the new plan has been too long deferred to assure returns commensurate with the efforts that will be made. Even if it were successful it would simply have the effect of robbing Peter to pay Paul by taking men from one essential industry and placing them in another.

The bargain hunters prove to be good finders.

Forty-one reasons, all of the same variety and "made in the United States," went out from Connelville and vicinity yesterday to show Kaiser a few things he needs to know about war.There are no reasons, except little ones, why married teachers of the gentler sex should not resume their places in the profession.Having failed of the Alamo-Marne front defensive the Kaiser is trying a defense at home by putting on a bold front.Although the Kaiser declares that the numerical superiority of the American army does not frighten him the howl he makes is about as loud an imitation of fright as can be made in Germany.Sword of the Kaiser's Macduff Unsheathe'd

By James B. Werner.

CAMP LEE, Va., August 1.—If the Kaiser ever emulated Macbeth by consulting witches, and there is abundant reason for thinking his widely heralded partnership with Gott is camouflage for something akin to at least fancied communion with evil spirits, a glimpse of the Camp Lee drill grounds would disillusion him.
Nearly every day there is enacted here a scene that instantly brings to mind the Birnam wood feature of the great Shakespearean tragedy.Stretching along the edge of the woodland that borders the eastern section of the camp, in battalion formation, National Army Soldiers give the appearance of making the forest move. Garbed in overalls and blouses of war-color blue denim which, at a distance of a half mile or so, blends perfectly with the nature-dyed green foliage, both battalion and woods seem to move when the soldiers respond with clock-work precision to the command: "Forward, march!" The eye is deceived until they have gone far enough that the ground between the long line formation and the grove is visible, when men can be distinguished from trees; even then the apparent matching of colors persists.The strikingly impossible fires the imagination and is an inspiration to disclose, in the light of the past few years' atrocities, another phase of the superstitious "divine right" of the kings, kaisers, emperors, czars and other representatives of privilege that openly or secretly, directly or indirectly, as circumstances permit or opportunity offers, seeks to destroy free institutions.For did not the witches urge Macbeth to "be bloody, bold and resolute; laugh to scorn the power of man," and how more fittingly could these words, which the weird sisters of darkness caused Macbeth to hear over the boiling cauldron in the cavern, impel the present day paragon of militarism: "Be lion-mettled, and take no care who chafes, who frets or where conspirers are; Macbeth shall never vanquish'd be until great Birnam wood to high Dunsinane hill shall come against him."And with what glees the soon-to-be murderer of his guest, upon hearing such "sweet bodements good!" from apparitions in the form of an armed head, a bloody child, and a crowned child, with a tree in his hand, exclaimed: "That will never be. Who can impress the forest, bid the tree unfix his earth-bound root? Rebellion's head, rise never till the wood of Birnam rise!"But there is a twentieth century apparition at Camp Lee. A modern Birnam rises, and it moves for world-wide freedom. Those who have seen it are sure it is ominous for Prussianism.
It is not stained with innocent blood, its hue is heavenly blue. It breathes the pure air of the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia, superheated by a July sun beating on the sands of the Old Dominion. It is fanned by zephyrs from the blue waves of the Atlantic.
With the Yanks crossing the sea by the million, it is taken to mean that the sword of the Kaiser's Macduff is unsheathed despite his recent remarks about the American army in a voyn much like Macbeth shrieking both "slave and liar" when the trembling messenger shook contemptuous, confident security of his master in Dunsinane castle with the announcement: "Methought the wood began to move."Falls From Box Car.

JOY COMETH.

The dawn of peace is coming soon;
read it in the stars and moon, and I'm a full grown seer. I read the planets, slick as grease, and I predict we'll bask in peace by June the 12th next year. Then we'll be paid a handsome price for every little sacrifice that new may chafe orirk; we'll have real bread of wheaten flour, and all we want in that glad hour when peace gains in its work. Then we may seat ourselves to grub, and not be told, by water duh, "You can't have beef today; it is the food director's wish that you should fill yourselves with fish watered custards." We'll wear silk shirts if we elect, and no one will denounce, object, or say it is a sin; we won't be subject to arrest if we should have our trousers pressed, or wear a plate glass pin. We'll motor on the village green, and burn up all the gasoline we can afford to buy, and none will say, "You help the Hun whenever your old boot you run! Shame, shaker, so and die!" When peace brings in her sunny days, we'll all get back to normal ways, and find this life a boon;
I watch the planets through a glass, and see that peace will come about the 12th of June. So let us bear whatever load may on our shoulders be bestowed with fortitude sublime; when peace comes back we'll all be gay, and gladly sing "Gallies Callies" and have a bully time.Classified Advertisements

FIRST PHOTOGRAPH OF AMERICANS IN CANTIGNY BATTLE

This is the first authentic photograph to reach the United States showing the Americans in the battle of Cantigny, their first really important conflict with the Huns. The first men to go over the top are seen leaping to the attack, while their companions in the trenches await the command to follow. Within 45 minutes the Americans had obtained all their objectives, taking many prisoners.

OUT O' LUCK.

If you've tried to jump the traces, and have sought the cheery places
An' have reckoned you could fix it so you never would be missed.
But you got out in the morning that they got you without warning.
An' they've put your name an' number on the extra duty list.
Do your added bit o' slaving, without whining about or raving.
Take the medicine they give you an'
don't even try to buck.
Play the game an' keep on grinning,
an' then make a fresh beginning.
It's the price that you are paying just for being out o' luck.It's a queer game, this o' fightin', an' it's gospel truth I'm writin'.
Men will go for weeks through dangers an' will never feel a hurt.
While their stock o' luck is lastin', all the shells the Huns are castin'.
Will be powerless to get 'em an'
they're scatterin' the dirt.
Then one day when war is nappin' an'
there's nothing due to happen
An' the sector's fine an' quiet by a sniper one is struck.
An' he dies right at his station, an'
the only explanation
In the answer of his comrades when they whisper "Out o' luck!"So it's no use frettin', sighin', when the shrapnel high is flyin'.
There's no way o' dodgin' bullets.
They will hit you or they won't;
An' whenever the line advances, every soldier runs his chances.
Those with luck get back to billets, an' the ones without it, don't.
Play the game an' keep on grinning through the fields that death is mowin'.
Follow orders to the letter an' don't ever lose your pluck.
Keep in mind when you are hissing there are some that they are missing.
So just pray to God above you that you won't run out o' luck.

WHERE IS ALL THE COKE GOING? HAS BECOME PERSISTENT INQUIRY

Furnaces Are Presumed to Be Stocking As They Have Opportunity.

FOUNDRY TRADE GROWS

Operating Conditions Providing More 72-Hour Coke; Screenings Do Not Command Limit Price Although Demand Is Unlimited; Coal Is Tense.

Special to The Weekly Courier.

PITTSBURG, July 31.—Serious complaint of the shortage of coke disappeared over two months ago. Since then there has been an increase of over 10,000 tons a week in the production of Connellsville coke and a still larger increase in the output of by-product coke and yet the situation nevertheless is that there are practically no offerings of furnace coke in the market. The question is being asked with increasing persistence where all the coke is going. Operators do not seem to know. They find all they make is absorbed by contracts and that is all there is about it. There are no requests for curtailment of shipments and whether furnaces are consuming all the coke they receive or are stocking some of it is not definitely known. Furnaces stocking coke would be disposed to advertise the fact. There is a strong presumption that some furnaces are stocking at least a little coke.

Another outlet for coke, and a fairly large one, is in the foundry direction. There is much more foundry coke produced than ever before in the history of the Connellsville region, and for a very simple reason. The time was that to be salable as foundry coke material had to meet three requirements, apart from physical and chemical restrictions. It had to be a 72-hour coke; it had to be shipped in box cars and it had to be carefully selected to meet competitive conditions. The box car requirement practically disappeared last year. The selection requirement, when there are more buyers than sellers, becomes practically a dead letter, and the result is that there is a great deal of coke that really becomes foundry coke since, by the prevalent system of operation, there is a larger proportion of coke that is burned in 72 hours than formerly—much more, in fact, than operators have to spare from contracts. For the surplus offered for foundry use there has thus far been a ready sale. Some operators have sold direct to foundries, others have operated through brokers, who have been willing to handle the coke on a very small margin. In view of the extremely trying conditions last winter the foundries are anxious to stock coke now that the opportunity is afforded and it is believed many are doing so.

While price limits are being defined by W. L. Byers, district representative of the Fuel Administration for the Connellsville region, applying under the recent order of the United States Fuel Administration for mixed screenings from old dumps remains an open one as its limit is $7.50 for coke over three-quarter inch, but the material will not bring as much in the open market, the best price paid thus far being $6.50, for the most carefully prepared material. The production of this material is increasing rather rapidly. An impetus was given some time ago by the realization of higher prices than had been expected, and a further impetus is now being given by the improvement in labor conditions in the region. Owing to the intelligent and strenuous work being done by operators and by representatives of various government bodies, the men are working better, putting in fuller time, and some operators have lately concluded that they can venture to go into the coke screening business and work over their dumps. Those who are selling the material assert that there is no danger of the market being glutted, for there is an almost unlimited demand at a price that makes the material competitive with anthracite and with new screenings. The market remains quotable as follows:

Furnace	$6.00
Foundry, 72-hour selected	$7.50
New crushed, over 3-inch	$7.00
Old screenings, over 3-inch	$6.50
Mixed screenings, price limit	$6.00

R. W. Gardiner, coal distributor for the Pittsburgh district, has closed four mines for shipping dirty coal and while he has not had enough inspectors at work to make frequent inspections he believes the closing of these mines will have a very salutary effect upon others. The situation as to supplies of Pittsburgh coal is still tense. Despite the recent order that all possible coal be shipped lawfully, in excess of the 1,500,000 ton quota previously assigned the district for July, the month's shipments are running but a shade above that amount, and this with an absolute prohibition of stocking of rail coal and with the shutting off of supplies to a few consumers who were not on the preference list. There is considerable stocking, however, of river coal and of coal trucked from mine to plant.

There has been a moderately active pig iron market in the past couple weeks, for delivering over the first half of 1918. Inquiry for this period appeared some time ago and some of the merchant furnaces eventually decided that they would cover such of their old customers as stood high in the War Industries Board's preference list. The sales represent only a fraction of the prospective output, both on account of the restrictions in the classes to whom sales would be made and on account of the necessity of furnaces reserving considerable tonnage for allocations, which are likely to be a feature of the situation right along. These allocations in pig iron are in essence similar to the priority orders in steel products, though the form is quite different. As a rule the consumer desiring pig iron approaches the pig iron division of the War Industries Board and if the purpose to which the iron is to be put is approved, by reason of its helping to win the war, the committee on pig iron, iron ore and lake transportation is notified, this committee accordingly issuing an order upon a selected furnace to furnish the iron. Apart from these allocations there is practically no business being done for early deliveries. The market remains quotable as the set limits, as follows:

SAYS CHEMIST IS PUBLIC BENEFACITOR

Being a doctor, and suffering for many years with stomach trouble, I feel I cannot do justice to so great a public benefactor in writing. May's Wonderful Remedy is everything you have claimed for it. I can now eat and relish victuals I have not dared to eat in many years. Am feeling like a new man. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. At the Theatres

"TRUE BLUE"—Presenting William Farnum, America's most popular player, is being shown today in the picture Mr. Farnum portrays the part of a western ranch owner, a human manly man. The story is out of the ordinary and deals with a phase of life new to cinema. An English remittance man suddenly becoming possessed of title and estates, deserts his American wife and young son, to return to England to reclaim him his inheritance. He does not take them with him for the reason that he believes he married beneath his station. This young man grows up on a ranch in the boundless west and becomes a central figure in this drama of life. This character is played by William Farnum. Over in England the titled father on learning of the death of his American wife, has married again and has another son, a dissipated profligate young man. Through a strange series of incidents the half brothers are brought together on the western ranch, one with wild deep resentment in his heart, the other weak and unconscious of the relationship. Running through the entire production is one of the sweetest love stories ever produced, a story that brings the half brothers into apparent rivalry for the hand of a charming young woman. A selected comedy is included. Monday and Tuesday Metro will present "To Hell With the Kaiser," a magnificent commingling of a fact and imagination showing how Wilhelm, the monster of Europe, signs a pact with Satan for the mastery of the world. Mabel Normand will be seen soon in "Joan of Plattsburg."

TELLS HOW TO GET BACK OLD TIME AMBITION

Discoverer instructs druggists everywhere not to take a cent of anyone's money unless Bio-feren doubles energy, vigor and nerve force in two weeks.

7 A DAY FOR 7 DAYS

Any man or woman who finds that they are going backward, are not as strong as they used to be, have lost confidence in their ability to accomplish things, are nervous and run down should take two Bio-feren tablets after each meal and one at bedtime. Seven a day for seven days. Then take one after each meal until the supply is exhausted. If your nervousness is not gone, if you do not feel twice as strong and energetic as before, if your sluggish disposition has not been changed to a vigorous active one, take back the empty package and your money will be returned without comment. No matter what excesses, worry, overwork—too much tobacco or alcohol—have weakened your body and wrecked your nerves, any druggist anywhere is authorized to refund your money on request. Bio-feren, the mighty upbuilder of blood, muscle and brain does not do just what is claimed for it.

ROSE NOBLY TO OCCASION

Book Lover Seized with Avidity Opportunity for Storage of His Beloved Treasures.

Antoinette, being naturally some what satirical, I have become used to hearing her describe the family as a small body of humanity endirly surrounded by books, but this morning, when she observed at the breakfast table that "There are books everywhere in this house except the bathroom and the fire escape" I felt obliged to reply with a certain show of firmness:

"My dear, your statement is incorrect."

"Indeed!" with an indescribable ironic rising inflection of which only the feminine voice is capable. "And may I ask why?"

"Because, my dear, the fire escape is not in the house. It is something quite exterior. However," I went on hurriedly, seeing my changes and holdily resolving to seize it. "I have been thinking of the fire escape for some time. It has occurred to me that it could be inclosed at a trifling expense and would in that form afford a good deal of wall space and shelf room which I could utilize to advantage, at the same time leaving ample room for egress in case of need."

Note to Physicians: There is no secret about the formula of Bio-feren. It is printed on every package. Here it is: Lactidin; Calcium Glycero-phosphate; Iron Peptonate; Manganese Peptonate; Rix; Rix Vomica; Powder; Gentian; Phenolphthalein; Cleararin; Capsicum; Xola.

Embroidery Now the Thing.

That headed trimming is rapidly giving to embroidery seems to be a fashion tendency beyond dispute. It is said that one reason why the metallic head effect became so popular in Paris and later in America a season or so ago was because it was possible to make use of metal filings and scrapings from munitions works for much of this trimming. But for some reason very little metal trimming is coming into this country now and heads are scarce. Embroidery is entirely within the bounds of things available. Hence the new dresses will show embroidery rather than beads. It has been said that there is an end to so-called Oriental and ecclesiastical embroideries, that is, bright colors have been overdone, and most of the smart dresses showing embroidery will be worked in threads of the same color or in some simple one-tone contrast.

For georgette slip-overs, small patterns in brilliant head embroidery are so effective that nothing has supplanted them for decorative purposes. Bright colors, as emerald green, blue, gold and rose, are chosen for many of the blouses with peplums. They have fully straight and are belted in. Their lines and headwork are reminiscent of American Indian art and they continue to be at once simple and very dressy. With a blouse of this kind and a silk or satin skirt, one may dress up to the requirements of almost any wartime function.

The blouse shown in the picture is one of those that has the appearance of a slip-over, but upon one shoulder to allow it to slip over the head. It hardly needs description, since it is plain, except for three single box plints in the georgette at the front and back. Between the plints at the front there are two conventional flower motifs outlined in colored silks. Four small crocheted buttons are set along the shoulders.

The second blouse is a model that has proved successful made of silk and of the sheer cottons, as voile, balliste, organdie, with a shirt front, collar and cuffs of cross-stitched white organdie set in. In the picture it is made of cross-bar voile in china blue with white organdie.

Embroidery Now the Thing.

That headed trimming is rapidly giving to embroidery seems to be a fashion tendency beyond dispute. It is said that one reason why the metallic head effect became so popular in Paris and later in America a season or so ago was because it was possible to make use of metal filings and scrapings from munitions works for much of this trimming. Slip-Over and Other Styles in Blouses

The slip-over blouse and others that have the appearance of slip-overs but fasten on the shoulder, have been steadily increasing in popularity and their chances for becoming a feature in fall styles are excellent. So far the slip-overs have been developed in georgette crepe almost to the exclusion of other materials, but it is certain that they will be made in more substantial silks for fall. Some of them have a short peplum and are belted down with narrow belts of silk or patent leather, but these are few in comparison with the number that are made regulation blouse length—that is, disappearing under the skirt at the waistline.

For georgette slip-overs, small patterns in brilliant head embroidery are so effective that nothing has supplanted them for decorative purposes. Bright colors, as emerald green, blue, gold and rose, are chosen for many of the blouses with peplums. They have fully straight and are belted in. Their lines and headwork are reminiscent of American Indian art and they continue to be at once simple and very dressy. With a blouse of this kind and a silk or satin skirt, one may dress up to the requirements of almost any wartime function.

The blouse shown in the picture is one of those that has the appearance of a slip-over, but upon one shoulder to allow it to slip over the head. It hardly needs description, since it is plain, except for three single box plints in the georgette at the front and back. Between the plints at the front there are two conventional flower motifs outlined in colored silks. Four small crocheted buttons are set along the shoulders.

The second blouse is a model that has proved successful made of silk and of the sheer cottons, as voile, balliste, organdie, with a shirt front, collar and cuffs of cross-stitched white organdie set in. In the picture it is made of cross-bar voile in china blue with white organdie.

BURNS WAS NO GOOD

"I released Burns to Philadelphia because he was a failure at the bat, because he clogged the bases, and was generally of no use to a winning ball club," explained Hughie Jennings.

And then Burns went out and batted his way to the top of the American league inside of two months, and, to inflict poetic punishment upon said Hughie Jennings, came up five times and poled five hits, including a double and a triple, right on the lot where he had been a "failure."

UNIQUE PRANK OF BASEBALL

Sam Jones of Cleveland Indians Has Distinction of Striking Out Mighty Tris Speaker

Sam Jones, who figured in the trade by which Tris Speaker became a member of the Cleveland team, has the distinction of being the first right-handed pitcher to strike out the heavy-hitting outfielder this year, and the second Boston pitcher to turn the trick since Speaker became a member of the Indians. It was the fourth time Speaker has struck out this season and the second time Umpire Owens has called the third strike on him.

Both major leagues ought to empower their umpires to decide whether games should be postponed because of rain or wet grounds. The home clubs often abuse this privilege.

MAYER FOR JACOBS

Discussing the swap of Mayer for Jacobs, one Philadelphia sport scold says: "Mayer's refusal to abide by Moran's and the catcher's signs was his biggest handicap. In places he was prone to pitch carelessly. It is expected that he will do better in Pittsburgh. Mayer is twenty-eight years old and joined the Phils in 1912. His best season was in 1915, when he won 21 games and lost 15. In 1916 he won 7 and lost 7, and last year he won 12 and lost 8."

KEYSTONE POSITION ON GIANTS HOODOOED

Tough Luck Has Stood in Path of Four Second Basemen.

Herzog Couldn't Get Along With McGraw—Doyle Was Taken Ill—Nichols Breaks Leg—Joe Rodriguez Does Not Fit In.

The second base job on the New York Giants must be hoodooed. Tough luck in one form or another has stood in the path of four players who have held down the keystone position for McGraw during the past two years. If the job isn't hoodooed, what is it?

Buck Herzog has tried holding down the position for McGraw several times. And Buck and that said job did not get along. Early last season, after he had been brought back to the Giants for the third time, Buck slipped on the floor of the Pennsylvania station while en route to Philadelphia with the team and received severe injuries. His condition has never been the same since that accident, and yet it wasn't that alone which caused McGraw to dispose of him, for, in addition, he failed to get along with the Giant leader.

Next in line came Larry Doyle, brought back to the New York club via Chicago and Boston. Larry went great guns for several weeks after the season opened. He led the league in batting and he was going like a machine in the field. Suddenly he was taken ill and had to undergo an operation.

With Doyle out of it, McGraw purchased Bert Nichols from the St. Louis Cardinals, and just as the team was getting ready to leave Philadelphia to return to the Polo grounds after a long and disheartening trip in the western half of the circuit Nichols broke his leg.

Joe Rodriguez, the Cuban infielder, has played the keystone sack on and off for the Giants all season, but Joe doesn't have the best of luck in the job, for though he works harder to make good than any other man who ever held the sack down he can't make himself fit into the combination.

The members of the Giants themselves are beginning to think that the second basing job is jinxed to a fare-you-well and no one can blame them.

Federal Food Administrators are no respecters of persons. At least, not in the District of Columbia. The pastry and baking department of one of the most exclusive and expensive groceries in Washington and two smaller bakeries were closed for two days, all three being penalized for violation of the United States Food Administration regulation which requires 20 per cent of wheat substitutes in all wheat flour bread. On these days signs were displayed prominently, as shown in picture, announcing that the closure was by order of the Federal Food Administrator for the District of Columbia because of the non-observance of the food regulations.

FORCE OF HABIT DID IT.

Carolyn of the Corners

By RUTH BELMORE ENDICOTT

(Copyright, 1918, by Dodd, Mead & Company, Inc.)

"You may let him out, if you wish, after you have had your dinner. You can feed him under the tree."

Carolyn May was very much excited about an hour later when a rusty closed back drew up to the front gate of the Stagg place and stopped.

An old man with a square-cut chin whisker and clothing and hat as rusty as the back itself held the reins over the bony back of the horse that drew the ancient equipage.

"I say, young'un, ain't you out o' yer halliwick?" queried Tim, the hickman, staring at the little girl in the Stagg yard.

Carolyn May stood up quickly and tried to look over her shoulder and down her back. It was hard to get all those buttons buttoned straight.

"I don't know," she said, perturbed. "Does it show?"

"Huh?" grunted Tim. "Does what show?"

"What you said," said Carolyn May seriously. "I don't believe it does."

"Hey!" chuckled the hick driver suddenly. "I meant, do you 'low Mrs. Kennedy knows you're playing in her front yard?"

"Aunt Rose? Why, of course!" Carolyn May declared. "Don't you know I live here?"

"Live here? Get out!" exclaimed the surprised hickman.

"Yes, sir. And Prince too. With my Uncle Joe and Aunt Rose."

"Fitcher of George Washington?" ejaculated Tim. "You don't mean Joe Stagg's taken a young'un to board?"

"He's my guardian," said the little girl proudly.

Aunt Rose appeared. She wore a close bonnet, trimmed very plainly, and carried a parasol of drab silk.

Aunt Rose climbed into the "reeky old vehicle."

"Are you going to be gone long?" asked Carolyn May politely.

"Not more than two hours, child," said the housekeeper. "Nobody will bother you here."

"Not while that dog's with her, I reckon," put in Tim, the hickman.

"May I come down the road to meet you, Aunt Rose?" asked the little girl.

"I know the way to Uncle Joe's house," said Carolyn May.

Carolyn May went back into the yard and sat on the front-porch steps and Prince yawning unhappily, curled down at her feet. There did not seem to be much to do at this place.

She had time now, had Carolyn May, to compare The Corners with the busy London streets with which she had been familiar all her life.

"Goodness me!" thought Carolyn May, startled by her own imagination, "suppose all the folks in all these houses around here were dead?"

They might have been for all the human noises she heard.

"Goodness me!" she said again, and this time she jumped up, staring Prince from his nap. "Maybe there is a spell cast over all this place," she went on. "Let's go and see if we can find somebody that's alive."

They went out of the yard together and took the dusty road toward the town.

They soon came in sight of the Parlow house and carpenter shop.

"We can't go beyond that," said Carolyn May. "Aunt Rose told us so. And Uncle Joe says the carpenter-man isn't a pleasant man."

She looked wistfully at the promise. The cottage seemed quite as much under the "spell" as had been these dwellings at The Corners. But from the shop came the sound of a plane shrieking over a long board.

"Oh, Prince!" gasped Carolyn May. "I believe he's making long, curly shavings!"

There was one thing Carolyn May noticed it was curious.

Suddenly Mr. Jedidiah Parlow looked up and saw the wistful, dust-streaked face under the black hat brim and above the black frock. He stared at her for fully a minute, pointing the plane over his work. Then he put it down and came to the door of the shop.

"You're Hannah Stagg's little girl, aren't you?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," she said, and sighed. Dear me, he knew who she was right away! There would not be any chance of her getting a suit of long curls.

"You've come here to live, have you?" said Mr. Parlow slowly.

"Yes, sir. You see, my papa and mamma were lost at sea—with the Duaraven. It was a mistake, I guess, signed the little girl, "for they weren't sailing anybody. But the Duaraven got in the way of some ships that were fighting, in a place called the Mediterranean ocean, and the Duaraven was sunk, and only a few folks were saved from it. My papa and mamma weren't saved."

"So?" said the carpenter, pushing his big spectacles up to his forehead. "I read about it. Too bad—too mighty bad! I remember Hannah Stagg," he added, winking his eyes. Carolyn May thought, a good deal as Prince did. "You look like her."

"Do I?" Carolyn May returned, drawing nearer. "I'm glad I do. And I'm glad I sleep in what used to be her bed, too. It doesn't seem so lonesome."

"So? I reckoned you'd be lonesome up there at The Corners," said the carpenter.

Mr. Parlow stripped another shaving from the edge of the board he was plumbing. Carolyn May's eager eyes followed that curling ribbon and her lips parted.

The carpenter paused before pushing the plane a second time the length of the board. "Don't you want a drink of water, little girl?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, sir—I would. And I know Prince would like a drink," she told him quickly.

"Go right around to the well in the back yard," said Mr. Parlow. "You'll find a glass there—and Mandy keeps a pan on the well curb for the dogs and cats."

"Thank you, I'll go," the little girl said.

She hoped she would see Mrs. Amanda Parlow, but she saw nobody.

She went back to the door of the carpenter shop and found Mr. Parlow still busy at work.

"Seems to me," he said, in his dry voice, after a little while, "you aren't much like other little girls."

"Aren't I?" responded Carolyn May wonderingly.

"No. Most little girls they come here want shavings to play with," said the carpenter, quizzically eyeing her over his work.

"Oh!" cried Carolyn May, almost jumping. "And do you give 'em to 'em?"

"Most always," admitted Mr. Parlow.

"Oh! Can I have some?" she gasped.

"All you want," said Mr. Parlow. When Tim's old hack crawled along the road from town with Aunt Rose sitting inside, enthroned amidst a multitude of bundles, Carolyn May was bedecked with a veritable wig of long, crisp curls.

"Well, child, you certainly have made a mess of yourself," said the housekeeper. "Has she been annoying you, Jedidiah Parlow?"

"She's the only Stagg that ain't annoyed me since her mother went away," said the carpenter gruffly.

Aunt Rose looked at him levelly. "I wonder," she said. "But, you see, she isn't wholly a Stagg."

This, of course, did not explain matters to Carolyn May in the least. Nor did what Aunt Rose said to her on the way home in the hot, stuffy hack help the little girl to understand the trouble between her uncle and Mr. Parlow.

"Better not let Joseph Stagg see you so friendly with Jedidiah Parlow. Let sleeping dogs lie," Mrs. Kennedy observed.

CHAPTER V.

A Tragic Situation.

Such was the introduction of Carolyn May to The Corners. It was not a very exciting life she had entered into, but the following two or three weeks were very full.

Aunt Rose insisted upon her being properly fitted out with clothing for the summer and fall. Carolyn May had to go to the dressmaker's house to be fitted and that is how she became acquainted with Chat Gormley's mother.

Mrs. Gormley was helping the dressmaker and they both made much of Carolyn May. Aunt Rose allowed her to go for her fitting alone—of course with Prince as a companion—so, without doubt, Mrs. Gormley, who loved a "dash of gossip," talked more freely with the little girl than she would have done in Mrs. Kennedy's presence.

One afternoon the little girl appeared at the dressmaker's with Prince's collar decorated with short, curly shavings.

"I take it you've stopped at Jed Parlow's shop, child," said Mrs. Gormley with a sigh.

"Yes, ma'am," returned Carolyn May. "Do you know, he's very liberal."

"Liberal?" repeated Mrs. Gormley. "I never heard of old Jed Parlow being accused of that before. Did you, Mrs. Maine?"

Mrs. Maine was the dressmaker; and she bit off her words when she spoke, much as she bit off her threads.

"No. I never—heard Jed Parlow—called that—no!" declared Mrs. Maine emphatically.

"Why, yes, little Carolyn May said quite eagerly, "he gives me all the shavings I want. I—I guess folks don't just understand about Mr. Parlow," she added, remembering what her uncle had first said about the carpenter. "He is real liberal."

"It's a wonder to me," drawled Mrs. Gormley, "that he has a thing to do with a certain party. Mrs. Maine considers how his daughter feels toward that certain party's relation. What do you think?"

"I guess—there's something to be said—on both sides o' that controversy," responded the dressmaker.

"Meanin' that maybe a certain party's relative feels just as cross as Mandy Parlow?" suggested Mrs. Gormley.

"Yep," agreed the other woman. Carolyn May listened, much puzzled. She wondered just who "a certain party" could be.

Mrs. Maine was called away upon some household task and Mrs. Gormley seemed to change the subject of conversation.

"Don't your uncle, Mr. Stagg, ever speak to you about Mandy Parlow?" she asked the little girl.

Carolyn May had to think about this before answering. Then she remembered.

"Oh, yes," she said brightly. "He does? Do tell!" exclaimed Mrs. Gormley eagerly. "What does he say?"

"Why, he says her name is Miss Amanda Parlow."

Mrs. Gormley flushed rather oddly and glanced at the child with suspicion. But little Carolyn May was perfectly frank and ingenuous.

"Humph!" ejaculated Chat's mother. "He never says nothing about being in love with Mandy, does he? They was gone with each other steady once."

The little girl looked puzzled.

"When folks love each other they look at each other and talk to each other, don't they?" she asked.

"Well—yes—generally," admitted Mrs. Gormley.

"Then my Uncle Joe and Miss Amanda Parlow aren't in love?" announced Carolyn May with confidence, "for they don't even look at each other!"

"They used to. Why, Joseph Stagg and Mandy Parlow was sweethearts years and years ago. Long before your mother left these parts, child."

"That was a long time 'fore I was borned," said the little girl wonderingly.

"Oh, yes. Everybody that went to The Corners' church thought they'd be married."

"My Uncle Joe and Miss Mandy?"

"Yes."

"Then, what would have become of Aunt Rose?" queried Carolyn May.

"Oh, Mrs. Kennedy hadn't gone to keep house for Mr. Stagg then," replied Mrs. Gormley. "He tried several triflin' critters there at the Stagg place before she took hold."

Carolyn May looked at Mrs. Gormley encouragingly. She was very much interested in Uncle Joe and Miss Amanda Parlow's love affair.

"Why didn't they get married—like my papa and mamma?" she asked.

"Oh, goodness knows!" exclaimed Mrs. Gormley. "Some says 'twas his fault and some says 'twas hers. And mebbe 'twas a third party's that I might mention at that," added Mrs. Gormley, pursing up her lips in a very knowing way.

"One day," she said, growing confidential, "it was in camp-meeting time—one day somebody seen Joe Stagg drivin' out with another girl—Charlotte Lenny, that was. She was married to a man over in Springdale long ago. Mr. Stagg took Charlotte to Faith camp meeting."

Cardinal Mercier

"A MORAL HERO"

There is a wonderful pen picture of Cardinal Mercier in the next installment of U. S. Minister Brand Whitlock's story of Belgium in THE PITTSBURGH SUNDAY PRESS—it is one of the choicest bits of real literature produced by the war.

THE HEN should be our national emblem instead of the eagle. She is the most patriotic citizen we have, furnishing a large portion of our food and revenue. This, in spite of all the abuse which we heap upon her.

We take little care of her and let her hustle for her own living. This is the real cause why eggs and fried chickens are high. The cost of feed is not the reason why so many poultrymen fail. On a proper diet a broiler can be raised to weigh one and a quarter pounds in six weeks which, in almost any market, will bring a dollar or more in eight months a properly fed and bred capon will weigh twelve and a half pounds and yet the average is probably less than half.

To succeed in poultry, you must cull out your unprofitable birds and feed the survivors for eggs and meat. The most successful poultrymen do not attempt to raise their own feed, but will buy by-product feeds which have been scientifically blended by long experience. These feeds contain what the chicken needs, preventing overfeeding or undernourishment of any of the necessary nutrients.

In no other industry has there been so much literature written. Every poultry-feed manufacturer issues a handbook which, if faithfully followed, will not fail to bring results. Every agricultural college and the U. S. Government can give you all the necessary information.

Keep dry mash feed always before them in a protected vessel, giving scratch feed only a short time before they go to roost.

Suburbanites and those who have limited space can successfully raise chickens if they will follow the rules and buy the proper feeds. A hen is an egg-making machine and if fed properly she will grind out eggs without fail. The trouble with most of us is that we are either too lazy or we want to get something for nothing and we allow poor birds to shift for herself.

COMPANY D BOY KILLS 18 GERMANS IN ONE BATTLE

No sooner did the first infantry line reach the woods than a battery of trench mortars under Lieut. Eric Heard of Rochester, N. Y., opened and kept the Germans in their dugouts until Major Joseph H. Thompson of Beaver Falls, Pa., got word to the machine gunners under Captain J. Ed Boyle of the same Pennsylvania town to take up a sweep of the forward area. Then the infantry plunged into the woods and after quick fighting took 100 prisoners.

Lieutenant Marshall Barren of Latrobe is officially credited with the capture of 87 prisoners. Exhausted, he delivered them to the rear and although ordered to a hospital, shouted: "Not much I am going back after some of those damn Hunns."

Then he returned to his company. During the period of three days' waiting word came by way of an exceedingly brave liaison officer, Lieut. John L. Robinson of Uniontown, Pa., that Maj. Thomas Anderson of Latrobe, Pa., upon the right flank, was running out of ammunition. The commanding officer sent for Corp. Harold Wickersham of Washington, Pa., and gave him a message to take to the rear.

Part of the route was under heavy shell fire. Wickersham took with him Private David March of Moonsgahela City, Pa., and started at 4:45 o'clock in the afternoon. Reaching the town where he was to deliver the message, he found that headquarters had been removed. In the dark night the two boys made their way to another American large unit and waking up the commanding officer got his telephone through to corps headquarters. He was told to come and give written confirmation of his verbal statement. Wickersham and March got to their final destination at 8 o'clock. The next morning, having tramped all night to find that the ammunition had been sent at the moment they made the telephone connection. Needles to say, Major Anderson and his entire command are grateful and the two boys have been recommended for an award as the ammunition came in the nick of time.

Before an attack is made the Germans always, when we shelled their dugouts, have been in the habit of coming forward and sitting at the edge of the woods. This was noted, and after shelling them out Monday night our artillery put down a barrage with machine guns exactly on the spot where they had been sitting, getting more than 300 of them before they scrambled back to their dugouts.

After Monday's attack was over Lieutenant Stewart Alexander of Marion, Pa., was busy interrogating a German lieutenant and a major just captured when a high explosive shell landed near by and killed both prisoners and wounded 15 American soldiers.

Alexander was blown 20 feet but does not carry a scratch as a reminder of the incident. He only regrets that he had not finished quizzing before the burst came. According to Private Ross Buck confirmed by officers on the units in the attack many of the Americans after being wounded and tagged for the hospital, tore off the tags and returned to the fighting.

Sergeant Blake Leighton of Altoona, Pa., acted as a scout between the gaps in the advancing lines and so distinguished himself as to be recommended for a commission. Another hero of that day and night was Lieutenant Samuel Hazlehurst of Camden, N. J., who has been highly recommended for bravery.

The fighting in this district was resumed Wednesday at noon our boys going forward with their customary dash without a single straggler and the end is not yet.

Major Joseph H. Thompson referred to in the above story from the greatest battlefield in the world's history is the former W & J football star later coach and a member of the Pennsylvania State Senate from the Beaver-Lawrence district.
Edward Boyle is as well known in Pittsburgh as in his home county of Beaver. He resigned from the

More Splendid Bargains for Friday and Saturday

Tuesday's and Wednesday's papers carried a full-page, closely written advertisement of the Bargains this store has prepared for Bargain Days—Thursday and Friday. LAKE COAL

To be Shipped to Lake Ports, Ahead of Other Fuel Shipments.

Orders have been issued to district representatives of the Fuel Administration to give preference in their shipments to the lake coal which their districts are required to ship. Shipments to the lakes will be moved ahead of all other coal leaving the fields except that intended for rail road fuel for by-product coke plants and for the manufacture of illuminating gas, until further orders.
